

ASCI LEADERSHIP SERIES 2019

27 AUGUST

Leadership and end to end supply chain visibility

It is no longer enough to just lead people; leaders need to orchestrate business ecosystems. There is a high demand for collective and collaborative leadership rather than relying on individual heroes. Leaders must be driven by purpose and determined to create value for all stakeholders. They have to develop ability to anticipate trends, to be more prepared to face them and to have greater flexibility. Leaders must possess genuine curiosity and open-mindedness towards diverse perspectives.

More than ever, supply chain leaders are required to de-silo their supply chains and create visibility in order to extract the data required to make business decisions. Join us and our host CBRE at their state of the art premises to hear how supply chain leaders tap into the required data from stakeholders, many of whom covert data in the deepest of chasms.

Panellists to be announced shortly.
